

FALEFOS PROJECT

Workshops

The period from January to June was dedicated to the planning and implementation of workshops for foster parents, social workers and biological parents.

Based on the requirements that had emerged from the needs analysis curricula were developed for all target groups. The participants were very pleased and said they would wish for regular workshops in the future.

It was the aim of the workshops to mutually raise awareness with respect to topics that are important for foster parents, social workers and biological parents and, consequently, to reach a change of attitude.

The workshops were evaluated, and the evaluation results were utilised when creating the guidebooks.

- If you are interested in the workshop results, please get in touch with one of the contact persons from the participating countries.

Fourth project meeting in Zagreb

- All the project partners met for their fourth meeting at the premises of the hotel International in Zagreb.
- The meeting focussed on the professional exchange with regard to the implementation and the results of the workshops in the partner countries. Positive aspects such as the participants' openness and willingness and, therefore, more detailed results for the future work of the organisations with the target groups became visible. The biological parents, in particular, said they would like to continue the process of discussing their own roles and their challenges.

- The second major part of the meeting was dedicated to developing/agreeing on the guidebooks. Each target group will receive its own guidebook with both theoretical input as well as proposals for implementation in everyday life.
- The content was established in working groups. Based on the results from the needs analysis and the workshop reports, we agreed on five topics. The layout will be both appealing as well as viable.

Next steps

- Finishing/printing the guidebooks
- Organising a national event per partner country to present the guidebooks and have discussions with the target groups and the stakeholders
- Final meeting in RO from 24th to 25th September
